Our question: Recent statistics show that people in Tyne and Wear are living longer now than they were in the year 2000. Why do you think this is?

- A) Because people have more control over the kind of healthcare they receive.
- B) Because people are looking after themselves better.
- C) Both: people have more control over their care and are looking after themselves better.

This study has received ethical approval from the Newcastle University Faculty of Medical Sciences ethics committee (reference: 00653/2013). By completing this card you are giving your consent for your answers to be used in our study. We will not share your contact details with anyone else. We will only use them to deliver your prize to you if you win.
