Blockchain can transform the world fundamentally. It is ready for limited applications in use cases such as Digital Currency, Lightweight financial systems, Ledgers, Provenance, and Disintermediation. However, it faces significant technical gaps and needs at least 5-10 years to find answers to those problems. The challenge is sustaining the current activity (e.g., startups, research) to the conclusion.